Making a Living by Farming in Guatemala

Submitted by jcupp on April 28, 2015

Rosa Pacheco installs drip irrigation with her niece on their family's part of a community farm in the Guatemalan highlands. The farm was one of the only opportunities in town for Rosa to make a living to support her four daughters after her husband left her. With the money she earns from farming, she has been able to send all her children to school. Photo by Greg Kahn for USAID
